The system that actually works

The Quran is about 604 pages. Millions of ordinary people - children, engineers, grandmothers, converts who learned the Arabic letters at 40 - have memorized every word. They all used some version of the same three-track system, and so will you. It takes 45-90 minutes a day.

The three daily tracks

- > Sabaq - the new lesson. Today's fresh portion: three lines to a full page, memorized in the morning on a fresh mind (after Fajr is the classical answer).
- > Sabqi - recent revision. Everything from the last few weeks (your current Juz). This fragile memory evaporates in days if it is not repeated. Recite it daily until it hardens.
- > Manzil - long-term revision. A fixed rotation through everything you have ever memorized - commonly one Juz a day once you have several. This keeps page 50 alive while you memorize page 300.

The one fact that decides everything

Revision is about 70% of Hifz; new memorization is only 30%. Nearly every abandoned attempt follows the same script: months of enthusiastic new memorization, no manzil system, then the crushing discovery that the early Juz are gone. This planner is built so that cannot happen to you.

The golden rules

- > One Mushaf, forever. Always memorize from the same printed layout. Your memory stores each page as an image - switching layouts deletes the map.
- > Listen before you memorize. Play the portion by a reciter you love several times first. You will memorize faster and inherit correct Tajweed.
- > Recite aloud, from memory, cold. The test is never 'can I read it fluently' - it is 'can I recite it with the Mushaf closed, hours later'.
- > Recite this week's pages in salah. What you pray with, you keep.
- > Never miss two days in a row. Miss one day, life happens. Miss two, and the third is frighteningly easy. This single rule saves more Hifz journeys than any technique.

My plan

Write this page by hand, once, honestly. A plan you wrote yourself is far harder to abandon.

My intention

Choose an honest pace

Daily new memorization	Total time (approx.)	Who it suits
2 pages / day	about 1 year	Full-time, intensive study
1 page / day	about 2 years	Serious students, 60-90 min daily
Half page / day	about 3-4 years	Adults with work and family
3-5 lines / day	about 5-6 years	Busy adults and young children

My commitment

My daily sabaq will be: _____

My daily memorization time is (e.g. after Fajr): _____

My weekly day of rest / pure revision: _____

I will recite to (teacher / partner): _____

Start date: _____

The date I will in shaa Allah complete Juz 1: _____

Remember: the students who finish are not the fastest ones. They are the ones who started with five imperfect lines on an ordinary Tuesday - and never missed two days in a row.

My week of memorization

Week starting: _____ Current Juz: _____

The 604-page wall

One box = one page of the standard 15-line Mushaf (about 20 pages per Juz). Fill a box only when that page is memorized AND has survived a week of sabqi. Watching this wall fill up is the most motivating sight in Hifz.

604 pages total - a few Juz have a page or two more or less; adjust in the margin.

A planner tracks the system. A teacher makes it stick.

You cannot hear your own mistakes - and a mistake revised daily becomes permanent. That is why every generation of huffaz has memorized the same way:
by reciting to a teacher who listens, corrects and tests.

At Maktab Quran your Hifz teacher assigns your sabaq, hears your sabqi and manzil, and corrects you live on a synchronized Quran page - from anywhere in the world.
